An empirical central limit theorem for intermittent maps

Jérôme Dedecker

LSTA, Université Paris 6-Pierre et Marie Curie

We give an empirical central limit theorem for the distribution function of a stationary sequence of real-valued random variables, under a dependence condition involving only indicators of half lines. Our result applies to the iterates of T, where T belongs to a class of expanding maps with a neutral fixed point at zero, as soon as the correlations are summable.